Area Trends in Employment and Unemployment provides information on labor surplus areas as classified by the U.S. Department of Labor.

The purpose in classifying labor surplus areas is to put the Federal Government's procurement contracts into areas of high unemployment. Employers located in these labor surplus areas are eligible for preference in bidding on Federal contracts.

Questions concerning the labor surplus area classifications may be directed to:

U.S. Department of Labor
Employment and Training Administration (TPPL)
601 D Street, N.W.

Telephone: (202) 376-6263

Employers located in labor surplus areas and interested in bidding on Federal contracts should consult the Commerce Business Daily which lists Federal contract requirements and indicates those to be awarded under preference procedures.

The Business Service Centers of the General Services Administration are located throughout the country and can provide additional information concerning Federal contracting opportunities. The locations of these Centers are provided at the end of this publication.

Eligible Labor Surplus Areas for Bidding On Federal Contracts

Background

Employers located in eligible labor surplus areas, as determined by the Department of Labor, and who meet other criteria, are entitled to preference in bidding on Federal procurement contracts.

The purpose of the labor surplus area procurement preference is to help guide a portion of the government's procurement dollars into those areas where people are in most severe economic need, e.g., areas with the highest unemployment.

The concept of targeting Federal procurement into areas of high unemployment dates back to the early 1950's. There was concern among Government officials at the time that high unemployment rates and low utilization of plant and equipment in some areas would lead to erosion of the mobilization base and adversely affect production during the Korean Conflict. There was also concern that the cost of constructing new plants and relocating workers would cause an unnecessary drain on resources.

The Office of Defense Mobilization studied this problem and in February 1952 issued Defense Manpower Policy Number Four (DMP-4), implementing the idea of targeting Federal procurements to labor surplus areas. The program eventually became the responsibility of the Federal Preparedness Agency within the General Services Administration.

The labor surplus area program was largely unsuccessful in producing contract set-asides to employers in such areas because the program lacked a statutory base. This was changed in August 1977 with the enactment of Public Law 95-89 which amended the Small Business Act. Public Law 95-89 authorizes Federal agencies to "set-aside" contracts for competition among firms which agree to perform a substantial portion of the production of the contract in labor surplus areas. Contracts may be set-aside when an agency determines that offers will likely be obtained from a large enough number of eligible firms to permit the awards to be made at reasonable prices.

During the Urban and Regional Policy Group's review of Federal programs in 1977-78, the labor surplus area program was identified as one which had potential for providing relief for distressed areas. In March 1978, the General Services Administration was directed to work with each Federal agency to set targets for labor surplus area contracts, monitor agency performance, and report to the President every 6 months on the progress of each agency. These principles were contained in Executive Order 12073 which was signed on August 16, 1978.

In addition, Executive Order 12073 assigned to the Department of Labor the responsibility for classifying labor surplus areas. This was a continuation of the Labor Department's responsibilities since the inception of the program under DMP-4 in the early 1950's. The Department also has responsibility for classifying such areas under Executive Order 10582 which implements the Buy American Act.

Classification Criteria

Under the Department of Labor's classification procedures, an area is classified as a labor surplus area if the unemployment rate is at least 1.20 times the national unemployment rate during the previous two calendar years.

The procedures also provide for the classification on the basis of exceptional circumstances. Under these procedures, if an area does not meet the criteria necessary for classification as a labor surplus area, the criteria can be waived and the area classified when there has been a sudden rise in the unemployment in the area (other than seasonal or short term) that is not reflected in the area's data for the reference period. Such situations can occur as a result of natural disasters, plant closings of major employers, etc. which have a substantial impact on the area's employment and unemployment. In situations where such exceptional circumstances occur, the area can be classified as a labor surplus area upon petition from the appropriate State employment security agency. The addresses of the State employment security agencies are provided on the inside back cover.

Labor surplus areas are classified on the basis of civil jurisdictions, i.e., counties or county equivalents, as well as all cities with a population of at least 50,000. In 4 States (Michigan, New Jersey, New York and Pennsylvania), townships of 50,000 or more population are also eligible for classification as labor surplus areas. In New England, the labor surplus area classifications for Maine, New Hampshire, and Vermont are based on county data while in Connecticut, Massachusetts and Rhode Island, where counties have very limited or no government function, the classifications use towns as county equivalents. By classifying labor surplus areas in this way, i.e., in terms of civil jurisdictions rather than labor market areas, funds can be directed to specific localities with high unemployment rather than to all jurisdictions in a given metropolitan area, not all of which may suffer from the same degree of unemployment.

The eligibility status of labor surplus areas is determined annually under the classification procedures. The annual listings are effective each June 1 and remain in effect for the following 12 months.

The reference period used in making the classifications is an average of the previous two calendar years. By using an average of 24 months of data, contracts can be targeted in areas experiencing high structural unemployment.

The two-year reference period used in classifying the current list of labor surplus areas was January 1979 through December 1980. The national average unemployment rate during this reference period was 6.6 percent. Areas are included in the annual listing if their average unemployment rate during the reference period was 7.9 percent or more (i.e., 1.20 times the national rate). The present list of labor surplus areas will remain in effect through May 31, 1982.

Additions to the Annual Listing of Labor Surplus Areas

The U.S. Department of Labor added 8 areas in 3 States and Puerto Rico to the annual list of labor surplus areas, effective January 1, 1982. These areas were added to the listing under the exceptional circumstances criteria. The newly classified areas are as follows:

Labor Surplus Area	Civil Jurisdiction Included
Massachusetts
Lynn City	Lynn City in Essex County
Ohio
Lake County	Lake County
Balence of Allen County	Allen County less Lima City
Oregon
Eugene City	Eugene City in Lane County
Puerto Rico
Carolina Municipio	Carolina Municipio in Puerto Rico
Guaynabo Municipio	Guaynabo Municipio in Puerto Rico
San Juan Municipio	San Juan Municipio in Puerto Rico
Toa Baja Municipio	Toa Baja Municipio in Puerto Rico

As a result of the classification of 8 additional labor surplus areas on January 1, 1982, there are now 1,132 areas included on the annual listing of labor surplus areas. Following is a complete listing of the 1,132 labor surplus areas.

Area Trends in Employment and Unemployment provides information on labor surplus areas as classified by the U.S. Department of Labor.

The purpose in classifying labor surplus areas is to put the Federal Government's procurement contracts into areas of high unemployment. Employers located in these labor surplus areas are eligible for preference in bidding on Federal contracts.

Questions concerning the labor surplus area classifications may be directed to:

U.S. Department of Labor
Employment and Training Administration (TPPL)

Eligible Labor Surplus Areas for Bidding On Federal Contracts

Background

Employers located in eligible labor surplus areas, as determined by the Department of Labor, and who meet other criteria, are entitled to preference in bidding on Federal procurement contracts.

The purpose of the labor surplus area procurement preference is to help guide a portion of the government's procurement dollars into those areas where people are in most severe economic need, e.g., areas with the highest unemployment.

The concept of targeting Federal procurement into areas of high unemployment dates back to the early 1950's. There was concern among Government officials at the time that high unemployment rates and low utilization of plant and equipment in some areas would lead to erosion of the mobilization base and adversely affect production during the Korean Conflict. There was also concern that the cost of constructing new plants and relocating workers would cause an unnecessary drain on resources.

The Office of Defense Mobilization studied this problem and in February 1952 issued Defense Manpower Policy Number Four (DMP-4), implementing the idea of targeting Federal procurements to labor surplus areas. The program eventually became the responsibility of the Federal Preparedness Agency within the General Services Administration.

The labor surplus area program was largely unsuccessful in producing contract set-asides to employers in such areas because the program lacked a statutory base. This was changed in August 1977 with the enactment of Public Law 95-89 which amended the Small Business Act. Public Law 95-89 authorizes Federal agencies to "set-aside" contracts for competition among firms which agree to perform a substantial portion of the production of the contract in labor surplus areas. Contracts may be set-aside when an agency determines that offers will likely be obtained from a large enough number of eligible firms to permit the awards to be made at reasonable prices.

During the Urban and Regional Policy Group's review of Federal programs in 1977-78, the labor surplus area program was identified as one which had potential for providing relief for distressed areas. In March 1978, the General Services Administration was directed to work with each Federal agency to set targets for labor surplus area contracts, monitor agency performance, and report to the President every 6 months on the progress of each agency. These principles were contained in Executive Order 12073 which was signed on August 16, 1978.

In addition, Executive Order 12073 assigned to the Department of Labor the responsibility for classifying labor surplus areas. This was a continuation of the Labor Department's responsibilities since the inception of the program under DMP-4 in the early 1950's. The Department also has responsibility for classifying such areas under Executive Order 10582 which implements the Buy American Act.

Classification Criteria

Under the Department of Labor's classification procedures, an area is classified as a labor surplus area if the unemployment rate is at least 1.20 times the national unemployment rate during the previous two calendar years.

The procedures also provide for the classification on the basis of exceptional circumstances. Under these procedures, if an area does not meet the criteria necessary for classification as a labor surplus area, the criteria can be waived and the area classified when there has been a sudden rise in the unemployment in the area (other than seasonal or short term) that is not reflected in the area's data for the reference period. Such situations can occur as a result of natural disasters, plant closings of major employers, etc. which have a substantial impact on the area's employment and unemployment. In situations where such exceptional circumstances occur, the area can be classified as a labor surplus area upon petition from the appropriate State employment security agency. The addresses of the State employment security agencies are provided on the inside back cover.

Labor surplus areas are classified on the basis of civil jurisdictions, i.e., counties or county equivalents, as well as all cities with a population of at least 50,000. In 4 States (Michigan, New Jersey, New York and Pennsylvania), townships of 50,000 or more population are also eligible for classification as labor surplus areas. In New England, the labor surplus area classifications for Maine, New Hampshire, and Vermont are based on county data while in Connecticut, Massachusetts and Rhode Island, where counties have very limited or no government function, the classifications use towns as county equivalents. By classifying labor surplus areas in this way, i.e., in terms of civil jurisdictions rather than labor market areas, funds can be directed to specific localities with high unemployment rather than to all jurisdictions in a given metropolitan area, not all of which may suffer from the same degree of unemployment.

The eligibility status of labor surplus areas is determined annually under the classification procedures. The annual listings are effective each June 1 and remain in effect for the following 12 months.

The reference period used in making the classifications is an average of the previous two calendar years. By using an average of 24 months of data, contracts can be targeted in areas experiencing high structural unemployment.

The two-year reference period used in classifying the current list of labor surplus areas was January 1979 through December 1980. The national average unemployment rate during this reference period was 6.6 percent. Areas are included in the annual listing if their average unemployment rate during the reference period was 7.9 percent or more (i.e., 1.20 times the national rate). The present list of labor surplus areas will remain in effect through May 31, 1982.

Additions to the Annual Listing of Labor Surplus Areas

The U.S. Department of Labor added 7 areas in 5 States to the annual list of labor surplus areas, effective February 1, 1982. These areas were added to the listing under the exceptional circumstances criteria. The newly classified areas are as follows:

Labor Surplus Area	Civil Jurisdiction Included
Alabama
Coffee County	Coffee County
Dale County	Dale County
Florida
Putnam County	Putnam County
New York
Wayne County	Wayne County
Ohio
Springfield City	Springfield City in Clark County
Balance of Clark County	Clark County less Springfield City
South Carolina
Florence County	Florence County

As a result of the classification of 7 additional labor surplus areas on February 1, 1982, there are now 1,139 areas included on the annual listing of labor surplus areas. Following is a complete listing of the 1,139 labor surplus areas.

L 37.13:

Area Trends in Employment and Unemployment contains the official list of labor surplus areas as classified by the Department of Labor. These are areas in which employers are eligible for preference in bidding on certian Federal contracts. The purpose of desginating labor surplus areas is to put the Federal Government's procurement dollars into areas of high unemployment.

This issue of the publication contains the annual listing of labor surplus areas which became effective on June 1, 1981, plus monthly updates made to this listing from July 1981 through March 1982. This publication also provides summary labor force data on major labor areas as well as a classification of these areas according to the adequacy of labor supply.

Descriptions of the program for which areas are eligible on the basis of high unemployment and the criteria used in determining such eligibility as well as a listing of the eligible areas are provided in the section "Eligible Labor Surplus Areas for Bidding on Federal Contracts."

A description of the criteria used by the Department in classifying major labor areas according to the adequacy of labor supply is provided in the section "Labor Supply Classifications and Summary Labor Force Data for Major Labor Areas and Others."

The labor force data provided in this publication for the most recent five quarters are developed by State employment security agencies in cooperation with the Bureau of Labor Statistics (BLS). Explanatory notes in the monthly BLS periodical, Employment and Earnings, under the heading "State and Area Unemployment Data", describe the methods prescribed by BLS in developing the estimates of labor force, employment, and unemployment.

Subscriptions to Area Trends in Employment and Unemployment may be purchased from the U.S. Government Printing Office at a cost of $26.00 ($32.50 foreign) for 12 monthly issues. Checks or money orders should be made out to the Superintendent of Documents and mailed to:

Eligible Labor Surplus Areas for Bidding On Federal Contracts

Background

Employers located in eligible labor surplus areas, as determined by the Department of Labor, and who meet other criteria, are entitled to preference in bidding on Federal procurement contracts.

The purpose of the labor surplus area procurement preference is to help guide a portion of the government's procurement dollars into those areas where people are in most severe economic need, e.g., areas with the highest unemployment.

The concept of targeting Federal procurement into areas of high unemployment dates back to the early 1950's. There was concern among Government officials at the time that high unemployment rates and low utilization of plant and equipment in some areas would lead to erosion of the mobilization base and adversely affect production during the Korean Conflict. There was also concern that the cost of constructing new plants and relocating workers would cause an unnecessary drain on resources.

The Office of Defense Mobilization studied this problem and in February 1952 issued Defense Manpower Policy Number Four (DMP-4), implementing the idea of targeting Federal procurements to labor surplus areas. The program eventually became the responsibility of the Federal Preparedness Agency within the General Services Administration.

The labor surplus area program was largely unsuccessful in producing contract set-asides to employers in such areas because the program lacked a statutory base. This was changed in August 1977 with the enactment of Public Law 95-89 which amended the Small Business Act. Public Law 95-89 authorizes Federal agencies to "set-aside" contracts for competition among firms which agree to perform a substantial portion of the production of the contract in labor surplus areas. Contracts may be set-aside when an agency determines that offers will likely be obtained from a large enough number of eligible firms to permit the awards to be made at reasonable prices.

During the Urban and Regional Policy Group's review of Federal programs in 1977-78, the labor surplus area program was identified as one which had potential for providing relief for distressed areas. In March 1978, the General Services Administration was directed to work with each Federal agency to set targets for labor surplus area contracts, monitor agency performance, and report to the President every 6 months on the progress of each agency. These principles were contained in Executive Order 12073 which was signed on August 16, 1978.

In addition, Executive Order 12073 assigned to the Department of Labor the responsibility for classifying labor surplus areas. This was a continuation of the Labor Department's responsibilities since the inception of the program under DMP-4 in the early 1950's. The Department also has responsibility for classifying such areas under Executive Order 10582 which implements the Buy American Act.

Classification Criteria

Under the Department of Labor's classification procedures, an area is classified as a labor surplus area if the unemployment rate is at least 1.20 times the national unemployment rate during the previous two calendar years.

The procedures also provide for the classification on the basis of exceptional circumstances. Under these procedures, if an area does not meet the criteria necessary for classification as a labor surplus area, the criteria can be waived and the area classified when there has been a sudden rise in the unemployment in the area (other than seasonal or short term) that is not reflected in the area's data for the reference period. Such situations can occur as a result of natural disasters, plant closings of major employers, etc. which have a substantial impact on the area's employment and unemployment. In situations where such exceptional circumstances occur, the area can be classified as a labor surplus area upon petition from the appropriate State employment security agency.

Labor surplus areas are defined on the basis of civil jurisdictions, i.e., counties or county equivalents, as well as all cities with a population of at least 50,000. In 4 States (Michigan, New Jersey, New York and Pennsylvania), townships of 50,000 or more population are also eligible for classification as labor surplus areas. In New England, the labor surplus area classifications for Maine, New Hampshire, and Vermont are based on county data while in Connecticut, Massachusetts and Rhode Island, where counties have very limited or no government function, the classifications use towns as county equivalents. By classifying labor surplus areas in this way, i.e., in terms of civil jurisdictions rather than labor market areas, funds can be directed to specific localities with high unemployment rather than to all jurisdictions in a given metropolitan area, not all of which may suffer from the same degree of unemployment.

The eligibility status of labor surplus areas is determined annually under the classification procedures. The annual listings are effective each June 1 and remain in effect for the following 12 months.

The reference period used in making the classifications is an average of the previous two calendar years. By using an average of 24 months of data, contracts can be targeted into areas experiencing high structural unemployment.

The reference period used in classifying the current list of labor surplus areas was January 1979 through December 1980. The national average unemployment rate during this reference period was 6.6 percent. Areas were included on the annual listing if their average unemployment rate during the reference period was 7.9 percent or more, i.e., 1.20 times the national rate. The initial list of 1,059 eligible labor surplus areas became effective June 1, 1981 and will remain in effect through May 31, 1982.

Newly Classified Labor Surplus Areas

Effective March 1, 1982, the U.S. Department of Labor added 6 areas to the annual list of labor surplus areas. The newly classified labor surplus areas are as follows:

Labor Surplus Area	Political Jurisdiction Included
Connecticut
Norwich City	Norwich City
Iowa
Wapello County	Wapello County
Massachusetts
Douglas Town	Douglas Town in Worcester County
Fitchburg City	Fitchburg City in Worcester County
Gardner Town	Gardner Town in Worcester County
Milford Town	Milford Town in Worcester County

The 6 areas were added to the labor surplus area listing under the exceptional circumstances criteria. As a result of the classification of 6 additional areas, there are now 1,145 labor surplus areas.

Following is the complete listing of all 1,145 labor surplus areas as of March, 1, 1982.

Labor Supply Classifications and Summary Labor Force Data for Major and Other Labor Areas, Second Quarter 1981

Labor Supply Categories

Each quarter the Department of Labor classifies almost 300 labor market areas (including 150 major employment centers) into one of the six labor supply categories shown below.

Labor Supply Category	Description	Unemployment Rate 1/
Group A	Critical shortage of labor	Less than 1.5%
Group B	Serious shortage of labor	1.5 to 2.9%
Group C	Moderate shortage of labor	3.0 to 5.9%
Group D	Moderate surplus of labor	6.0 to 8.9%
Group E	Serious surplus of labor	9.0 to 11.9%
Group F	Critical surplus of labor	12.0% or more

1/ Ratio of unemployment to area's total labor force.

Background

The categories used in classifying major labor areas according to the adequacy of supply of labor represent a continuation of a system which has been in operation for over 25 years. Although modifications have been made in the system from time to time, the present labor supply categories as indicated above are basically unchanged since May 1955.

The labor supply classifications are provided for use in analyzing the relative levels of unemployment among the largest employment centers of the country. The labor supply classifications provided in this issue cover the third quarter of 1981 and are based upon the average labor force data for the months of July, August and September 1981.

Following is a table of the labor supply classifications for 288 major labor areas, covering the second and third quarters of 1981. The total U.S. unemployment rate for each of these quarters is also provided.

Labor Supply Category	Third Quarter 1981	Second Quarter 1981
Total, All Groups	288	288
Group A	0	0
Group B	2	1
Group C	85	81
Group D	134	147
Group E	56	48
Group F	11	11
U.S. Unemployment Rate	7.2	7.4

The moderate reduction in the national unemployment rate from the second to the third quarters of 1981 was accompanied by a small increase in the areas in the B and C categories involving areas with relatively low levels of unemployment. The number of areas with unemployment in excess of 6.0 percent decreased, with a large reduction in Group D offset by a small increase in Group E.

To assist in analyzing trends over time in the relative unemployment levels of the nation's major employment centers, the labor supply classifications for the same 150 areas are provided each quarter. The following table provides a comparison of the labor supply classifications for the 150 areas during the last two quarters of 1980 and the first three quarters of 1981. The total U.S. unemployment rate is also provided for each of these quarters.

Labor Supply Category	Third Quarter 1981	Second Quarter 1981	First Quarter 1981	Fourth Quarter 1980	Third Quarter 1980
Group B	1	0	0	0	0
Group C	35	38	30	51	32
Group D	82	82	75	67	85
Group E	27	24	32	23	22
Group F	5	6	13	9	11
U.S. Unemployment Rate	7.2	7.4	7.4	7.5	7.5

There was little change in the 150 area classifications between the second and third quarters of 1981. Approximately three-fourths of the 150 areas continue to have a surplus of labor (Groups D, E and F). Although the number of areas with a moderate labor shortage fell slightly (Group C), one area (Oklahoma City) was classified as having a serious labor shortage.

In comparison with the classifications for the third quarter of 1980, the most recent classifications indicate a moderate improvement in the unemployment situation for the 150 areas. This is reflected by the increase in the Group B and C areas, while the number of areas in Group F was less than one-half of the year-ago number.

The third quarter 1981 labor supply classifications and labor force data for the major labor areas are provided in the table following this section. The 150 labor areas are identified by an asterisk (*).

Labor Market Areas

Unlike the classification of labor surplus areas for Federal contract preference which are done on the basis of civil jurisdictions, the labor supply classifications are done on a labor market area or metropolitan area basis.

A labor market area means a geographic area in which there is a concentration of economic activity or labor demand and in which workers can readily change jobs without changing their place of residence. The largest labor market areas usually contain at least one central city with a population of 50,000 or more. In most instances, the boundaries of the large labor market areas coincide with the boundaries of the Standard Metropolitan Statistical Areas.

While the largest market areas are defined in terms of a central city plus the surrounding counties which comprise the metropolitan area, smaller labor market areas are usually defined as one or more counties. In New England, the areas are defined on the basis of groupings of towns which are considered to be the major geographical units.

The geographical boundaries of all labor market areas are contained in the Employment and Training Administration publication entitled Directory of Important Labor Areas. Requests for copies of the Directory should be addressed to the Employment and Training Administration, Attention: TPPL (Room 9304), 601 D Street, N.W., Washington, D.C. 20213.

Area Trends in Employment and Unemployment provides information on labor surplus areas as classified by the U.S. Department of Labor.

The purpose in classifying labor surplus areas is to put the Federal Government's procurement contracts into areas of high unemployment. Employers located in these labor surplus areas are eligible for preference in bidding on Federal contracts.

Questions concerning the labor surplus area classifications may be directed to:

U.S. Department of Labor
Employment and Training Administration (TPPL)
601 D Street, N.W.

Eligible Labor Surplus Areas for Bidding On Federal Contracts

Background

Employers located in eligible labor surplus areas, as determined by the Department of Labor, and who meet other criteria, are entitled to preference in bidding on Federal procurement contracts.

The purpose of the labor surplus area procurement preference is to help guide a portion of the government's procurement dollars into those areas where people are in most severe economic need, e.g., areas with the highest unemployment.

The concept of targeting Federal procurement into areas of high unemployment dates back to the early 1950's. There was concern among Government officials at the time that high unemployment rates and low utilization of plant and equipment in some areas would lead to erosion of the mobilization base and adversely affect production during the Korean Conflict. There was also concern that the cost of constructing new plants and relocating workers would cause an unnecessary drain on resources.

The Office of Defense Mobilization studied this problem and in February 1952 issued Defense Manpower Policy Number Four (DMP-4), implementing the idea of targeting Federal procurements to labor surplus areas. The program eventually became the responsibility of the Federal Preparedness Agency within the General Services Administration.

The labor surplus area program was largely unsuccessful in producing contract set-asides to employers in such areas because the program lacked a statutory base. This was changed in August 1977 with the enactment of Public Law 95-89 which amended the Small Business Act. Public Law 95-89 authorizes Federal agencies to "set-aside" contracts for competition among firms which agree to perform a substantial portion of the production of the contract in labor surplus areas. Contracts may be set-aside when an agency determines that offers will likely be obtained from a large enough number of eligible firms to permit the awards to be made at reasonable prices.

During the Urban and Regional Policy Group's review of Federal programs in 1977-78, the labor surplus area program was identified as one which had potential for providing relief for distressed areas. In March 1978, the General Services Administration was directed to work with each Federal agency to set targets for labor surplus area contracts, monitor agency performance, and report to the President every 6 months on the progress of each agency. These principles were contained in Executive Order 12073 which was signed on August 16, 1978.

In addition, Executive Order 12073 assigned to the Department of Labor the responsibility for classifying labor surplus areas. This was a continuation of the Labor Department's responsibilities since the inception of the program under DMP-4 in the early 1950's. The Department also has responsibility for classifying such areas under Executive Order 10582 which implements the Buy American Act.

Classification Criteria

Under the Department of Labor's classification procedures, an area is classified as a labor surplus area if the unemployment rate is at least 1.20 times the national unemployment rate during the previous two calendar years.

The procedures also provide for the classification on the basis of exceptional circumstances. Under these procedures, if an area does not meet the criteria necessary for classification as a labor surplus area, the criteria can be waived and the area classified when there has been a sudden rise in the unemployment in the area (other than seasonal or short term) that is not reflected in the area's data for the reference period. Such situations can occur as a result of natural disasters, plant closings of major employers, etc. which have a substantial impact on the area's employment and unemployment. In situations where such exceptional circumstances occur, the area can be classified as a labor surplus area upon petition from the appropriate State employment security agency. The addresses of the State employment security agencies are provided on the inside back cover.

Labor surplus areas are classified on the basis of civil jurisdictions, i.e., counties or county equivalents, as well as all cities with a population of at least 50,000. In 4 States (Michigan, New Jersey, New York and Pennsylvania), townships of 50,000 or more population are also eligible for classification as labor surplus areas. In New England, the labor surplus area classifications for Maine, New Hampshire, and Vermont are based on county data while in Connecticut, Massachusetts and Rhode Island, where counties have very limited or no government function, the classifications use towns as county equivalents. By classifying labor surplus areas in this way, i.e., in terms of civil jurisdictions rather than labor market areas, funds can be directed to specific localities with high unemployment rather than to all jurisdictions in a given metropolitan area, not all of which may suffer from the same degree of unemployment.

The eligibility status of labor surplus areas is determined annually under the classification procedures. The annual listings are effective each June 1 and remain in effect for the following 12 months.

The reference period used in making the classifications is an average of the previous two calendar years. By using an average of 24 months of data, contracts can be targeted in areas experiencing high structural unemployment.

The two-year reference period used in classifying the current list of labor surplus areas was January 1979 through December 1980. The national average unemployment rate during this reference period was 6.6 percent. Areas are included in the annual listing if their average unemployment rate during the reference period was 7.9 percent or more (i.e., 1.20 times the national rate). The present list of labor surplus areas will remain in effect through May 31, 1982.

Additions to the Annual Listing of Labor Surplus Areas

The U.S. Department of Labor added 6 areas in 5 States to the annual list of labor surplus areas, effective April 1, 1982. These areas were added to the listing under the exceptional circumstances criteria. The newly classified areas are as follows:

Labor Surplus Area	Civil Jurisdiction Included

Tishomingo County	Tishomingo County
North Carolina
Edgecombe County	Edgecombe County
Yancey County	Yancey County
South Carolina
Greenwood County	Greenwood County
Tennessee
Weakley County	Weakley County

As a result of the classification of 6 additional labor surplus areas on April 1, 1982, there are now 1,151 areas included on the annual listing of labor surplus areas. Following is a complete listing of the 1,151 labor surplus areas.

Area Trends in Employment and Unemployment provides information on labor surplus areas as classified by the U.S. Department of Labor.

The purpose in classifying labor surplus areas is to put the Federal Government's procurement contracts into areas of high unemployment. Employers located in these labor surplus areas are eligible for preference in bidding on Federal contracts.

Questions concerning the labor surplus area classifications may be directed to:

U.S. Department of Labor
Employment and Training Administration (TPPL)

Eligible Labor Surplus Areas for Bidding On Federal Contracts

Background

Employers located in eligible labor surplus areas, as determined by the Department of Labor, and who meet other criteria, are entitled to preference in bidding on Federal procurement contracts.

The purpose of the labor surplus area procurement preference is to help guide a portion of the government's procurement dollars into those areas where people are in most severe economic need, e.g., areas with the highest unemployment.

The concept of targeting Federal procurement into areas of high unemployment dates back to the early 1950's. There was concern among Government officials at the time that high unemployment rates and low utilization of plant and equipment in some areas would lead to erosion of the mobilization base and adversely affect production during the Korean Conflict. There was also concern that the cost of constructing new plants and relocating workers would cause an unnecessary drain on resources.

The Office of Defense Mobilization studied this problem and in February 1952 issued Defense Manpower Policy Number Four (DMP-4), implementing the idea of targeting Federal procurements to labor surplus areas. The program eventually became the responsibility of the Federal Preparedness Agency within the General Services Administration.

The labor surplus area program was largely unsuccessful in producing contract set-asides to employers in such areas because the program lacked a statutory base. This was changed in August 1977 with the enactment of Public Law 95-89 which amended the Small Business Act. Public Law 95-89 authorizes Federal agencies to "set-aside" contracts for competition among firms which agree to perform a substantial portion of the production of the contract in labor surplus areas. Contracts may be set-aside when an agency determines that offers will likely be obtained from a large enough number of eligible firms to permit the awards to be made at reasonable prices.

During the Urban and Regional Policy Group's review of Federal programs in 1977-78, the labor surplus area program was identified as one which had potential for providing relief for distressed areas. In March 1978, the General Services Administration was directed to work with each Federal agency to set targets for labor surplus area contracts, monitor agency performance, and report to the President every 6 months on the progress of each agency. These principles were contained in Executive Order 12073 which was signed on August 16, 1978.

In addition, Executive Order 12073 assigned to the Department of Labor the responsibility for classifying labor surplus areas. This was a continuation of the Labor Department's responsibilities since the inception of the program under DMP-4 in the early 1950's. The Department also has responsibility for classifying such areas under Executive Order 10582 which implements the Buy American Act.

Classification Criteria

Under the Department of Labor's classification procedures, an area is classified as a labor surplus area if the unemployment rate is at least 1.20 times the national unemployment rate during the previous two calendar years.

The procedures also provide for the classification on the basis of exceptional circumstances. Under these procedures, if an area does not meet the criteria necessary for classification as a labor surplus area, the criteria can be waived and the area classified when there has been a sudden rise in the unemployment in the area (other than seasonal or short term) that is not reflected in the area's data for the reference period. Such situations can occur as a result of natural disasters, plant closings of major employers, etc. which have a substantial impact on the area's employment and unemployment. In situations where such exceptional circumstances occur, the area can be classified as a labor surplus area upon petition from the appropriate State employment security agency.

Labor surplus areas are defined on the basis of civil jurisdictions, i.e., counties or county equivalents, as well as all cities with a population of at least 50,000. In 4 States (Michigan, New Jersey, New York and Pennsylvania), townships of 50,000 or more population are also eligible for classification as labor surplus areas. In New England, the labor surplus area classifications for Maine, New Hampshire, and Vermont are based on county data while in Connecticut, Massachusetts and Rhode Island, where counties have very limited or no government function, the classifications use towns as county equivalents. By classifying labor surplus areas in this way, i.e., in terms of civil jurisdictions rather than labor market areas, funds can be directed to specific localities with high unemployment rather than to all jurisdictions in a given metropolitan area, not all of which may suffer from the same degree of unemployment.

The eligibility status of labor surplus areas is determined annually under the classification procedures. The annual listings are effective each June 1 and remain in effect for the following 12 months.

The reference period used in making the classifications is an average of the previous two calendar years. By using an average of 24 months of data, contracts can be targeted into areas experiencing high structural unemployment.

The reference period used in classifying the current list of labor surplus areas was January 1979 through December 1980. The national average unemployment rate during this reference period was 6.6 percent. Areas were included on the annual listing if their average unemployment rate during the reference period was 7.9 percent or more, i.e., 1.20 times the national rate. The initial list of 1,059 eligible labor surplus areas became effective June 1, 1981 and will remain in effect through May 31, 1982.

Newly Classified Labor Surplus Areas

Effective May 1, 1982, the U.S. Department of Labor added 19 areas to the annual list of labor surplus areas. The newly classified labor surplus areas are as follows:

Labor Surplus Area	Political Jurisdiction Included
Florida
Collier County	Collier County

NEWARK PUBLIC LIBRARY
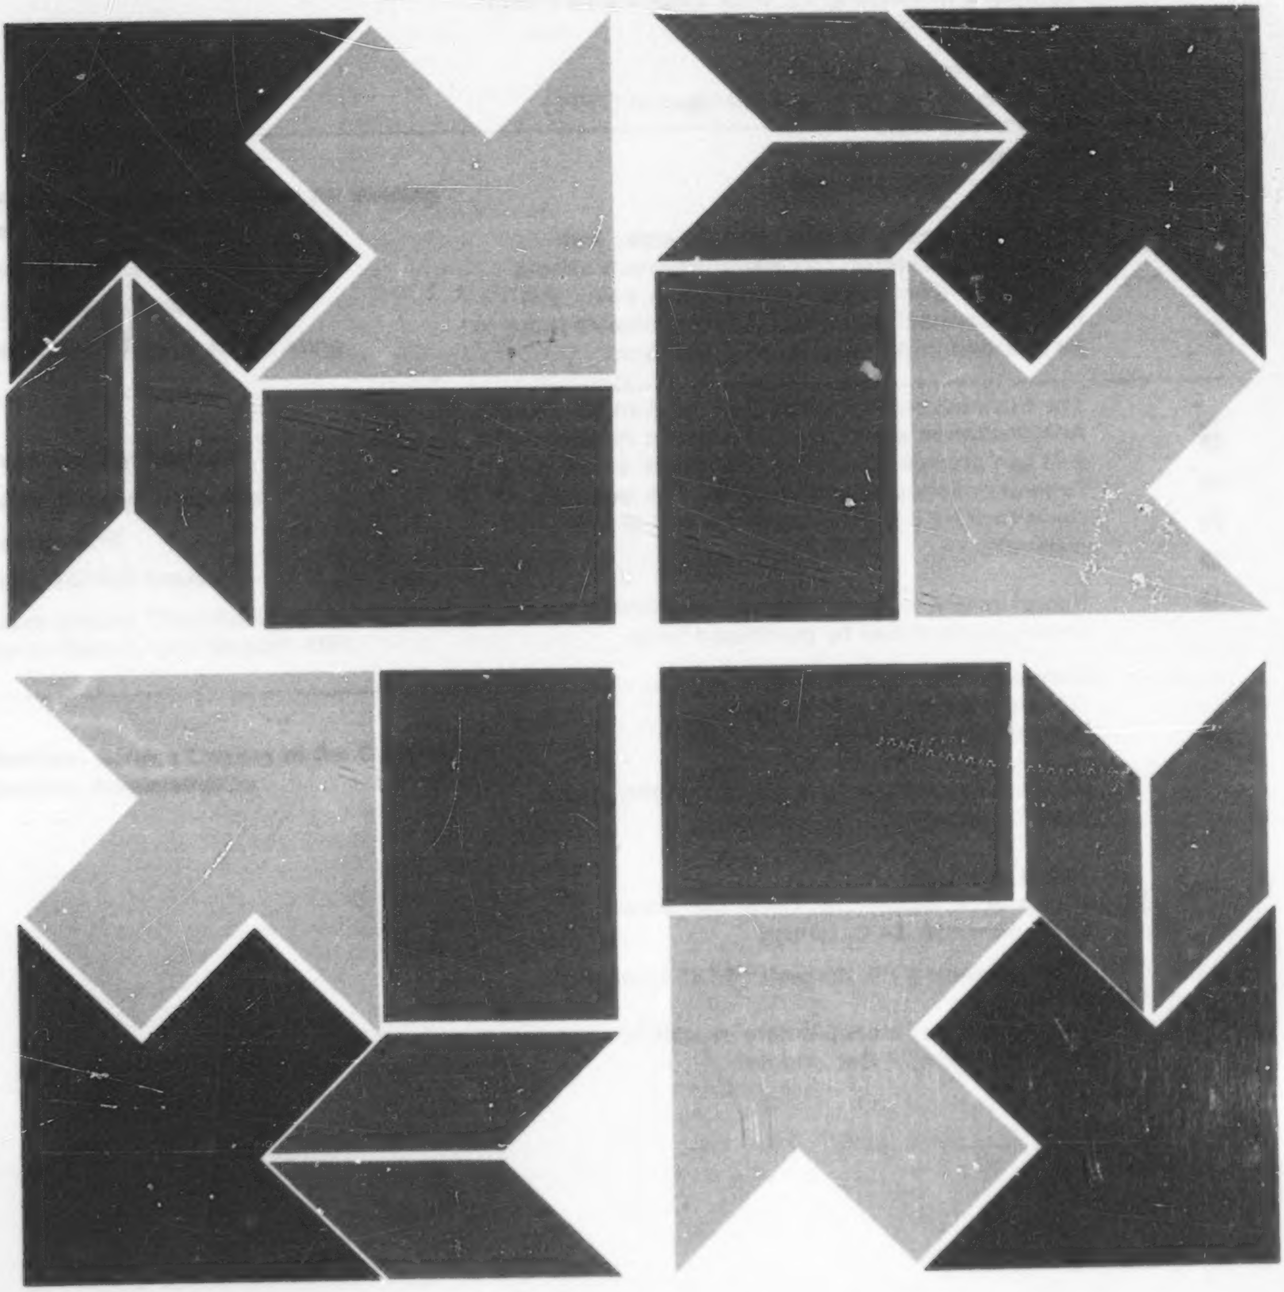
U.S. DOCUMENTS



L 37.13:

Area Trends in Employment and Unemployment provides information on labor surplus areas as classified by the U.S. Department of Labor.

The purpose in classifying labor surplus areas is to put the Federal Government's procurement contracts into areas of high unemployment. Employers located in these labor surplus areas are eligible for preference in bidding on Federal contracts.

Questions concerning the labor surplus area classifications may be directed to:

U.S. Department of Labor
Employment and Training Administration (TPPL)
601 D Street, N.W.
Washington, D.C. 20213
Telephone: (202) 376-8500

Employers located in labor surplus areas and interested in bidding on Federal contracts should consult the Commerce Business Daily which lists Federal contract requirements and indicates those to be awarded under preference procedures.

The Business Service Centers of the General Services Administration are located throughout the country and can provide additional information concerning Federal contracting opportunities. The locations of these Centers are provided at the end of this publication.

Subscriptions to Area Trends in Employment and Unemployment may be purchased from:

Superintendent of Documents
U.S. Government Printing Office
Washington, D.C. 20402

Annual subscription price for 12 monthly issues—
$26.00 domestic; $32.50 foreign

Single copies—
March, June, September, December issues:
$3.50 domestic; $4.40 foreign

Other months: $2.75 domestic; $3.45 foreign

Make checks or money orders payable to Superintendent of Documents.

Eligible Labor Surplus Areas for Bidding On Federal Contracts

Background

Employers located in eligible labor surplus areas, as determined by the Department of Labor, and who meet other criteria, are entitled to preference in bidding on Federal procurement contracts.

The purpose of the labor surplus area procurement preference is to help guide a portion of the government's procurement dollars into those areas where people are in most severe economic need, e.g., areas with the highest unemployment.

The concept of targeting Federal procurement into areas of high unemployment dates back to the early 1950's. There was concern among Government officials at the time that high unemployment rates and low utilization of plant and equipment in some areas would lead to erosion of the mobilization base and adversely affect production during the Korean Conflict. There was also concern that the cost of constructing new plants and relocating workers would cause an unnecessary drain on resources.

The Office of Defense Mobilization studied this problem and in February 1952 issued Defense Manpower Policy Number Four (DMP-4), implementing the idea of targeting Federal procurements to labor surplus areas. The program eventually became the responsibility of the Federal Preparedness Agency within the General Services Administration.

The labor surplus area program was largely unsuccessful in producing contract set-asides to employers in such areas because the program lacked a statutory base. This was changed in August 1977 with the enactment of Public Law 95-89 which amended the Small Business Act. Public Law 95-89 authorizes Federal agencies to "set-aside" contracts for competition among firms which agree to perform a substantial portion of the production of the contract in labor surplus areas. Contracts may be set-aside when an agency determines that offers will likely be obtained from a large enough number of eligible firms to permit the awards to be made at reasonable prices.

During the Urban and Regional Policy Group's review of Federal programs in 1977-78, the labor surplus area program was identified as one which had potential for providing relief for distressed areas. In March 1978, the General Services Administration was directed to work with each Federal agency to set targets for labor surplus area contracts, monitor agency performance, and report to the President every 6 months on the progress of each agency. These principles were contained in Executive Order 12073 which was signed on August 16, 1978.

In addition, Executive Order 12073 assigned to the Department of Labor the responsibility for classifying labor surplus areas. This was a continuation of the Labor Department's responsibilities since the inception of the program under DMP-4 in the early 1950's. The Department also has responsibility for classifying such areas under Executive Order 10582 which implements the Buy American Act.

Classification Criteria

Under the Department of Labor's classification procedures, an area is classified as a labor surplus area if the unemployment rate is at least 1.20 times the national unemployment rate during the previous two calendar years.

The procedures also provide for the classification on the basis of exceptional circumstances. Under these procedures, if an area does not meet the criteria necessary for classification as a labor surplus area, the criteria can be waived and the area classified when there has been a sudden rise in the unemployment in the area (other than seasonal or short term) that is not reflected in the area's data for the reference period. Such situations can occur as a result of natural disasters, plant closings of major employers, etc. which have a substantial impact on the area's employment and unemployment. In situations where such exceptional circumstances occur, the area can be classified as a labor surplus area upon petition from the appropriate State employment security agency. The addresses of the State employment security agencies are provided on the inside back cover.

Labor surplus areas are classified on the basis of civil jurisdictions, i.e., counties or county equivalents, as well as all cities with a population of at least 50,000. In 4 States (Michigan, New Jersey, New York and Pennsylvania), townships of 50,000 or more population are also eligible for classification as labor surplus areas. In New England, the labor surplus areas classifications for Maine, New Hampshire, and Vermont are based on county data while in Connecticut, Massachusetts and Rhode Island, where counties have very limited or no government function, the classifications use towns as county equivalents. By classifying labor surplus areas in this way i.e., in terms of civil jurisdictions rather than labor market areas, funds can be directed to specific localities with high unemployment rather than to all jurisdictions in a given metropolitan area, not all of which may suffer from the same degree of unemployment.

The eligibility status of labor surplus areas is determined annually under the classification procedures. The annual listings are effective each June 1 and remain in effect for the following 12 months.

The reference period used in preparing the new list of labor surplus areas was January 1980 through December 1981. The national average unemployment rate during the reference period was 7.5 percent. Areas were included on the annual listing if their average unemployment rate during the reference period was 9.0 percent or more, i.e., 1.20 times the national rate.

New Labor Surplus Area Listing

Effective June 1, 1982, the U.S. Department of Labor issued the new labor surplus area listing. This listing will remain in effect through May 31, 1983, and contains a total of 1,099 areas in which employers are eligible for preference in bidding on Federal contracts.

Following is a complete listing of all 1,099 labor surplus areas as of June 1, 1982.

Labor Supply Analysis, Fourth Quarter 1981

Labor Supply Categories

Each quarter, the Department of Labor classifies over 300 of the Standard Metropolitan Statistical Areas (SMSAs) into one of the six labor supply categories shown below.

Labor Supply Category	Description	Unemployment Rate [1]
Group A	Critical shortage of labor	Less than 1.5%
Group B	Serious shortage of labor	1.5 to 2.9%
Group C	Moderate shortage of labor	3.0 to 5.9%
Group D	Moderate surplus of labor	6.0 to 8.9%
Group E	Serious surplus of labor	9.0 to 11.9%
Group F	Critical surplus of labor	12.0% or more

[1] Ratio of unemployment to area's total labor force.

Background

The categories used inclassifying major labor areas according to the adequacy of the supply of labor represent a continuation of a system which has been in operation for over 25 years. Although modifications have been made in the system from time to time, the present labor supply categories as indicated above are basically unchanged since May 1955.

The labor supply classifications are provided for use in analyzing the relative levels of unemployment among the largest employment centers of the country. The labor supply classifications should not be confused with the listing of labor surplus areas provided in the previous section. The labor supply classifications are prepared for analytical purposes only and are not to be used in determining preference for Federal contracts.

The labor supply classifications provided in this issue cover the fourth quarter of 1981 and are based upon average labor force data for the months of October, November and December 1981.

Following is a table of the labor supply classifications for the SMSAs, covering the third and fourth quarters of 1981. The total U.S. unemployment rate for each of these quarters is also provided.

Labor Supply Category	Fourth Quarter 1981	Third Quarter 1981

[1] Source: Bureau of Labor Statistics

The substantial increase in total unemployment for the nation from the third to the fourth quarter of 1981 was accompanied by a reduction in the number of areas experiencing labor shortages (Groups A, B, and C) and a major increase in the number of areas with a surplus of labor (Groups D, E, and F). A particularly sharp rise occurred in Group F where the number of areas increased from 11 to 40.

To assist in analyzing trends over time in the relative unemployment levels of the nation's major employment centers, the labor supply classifications are provided for the same 150 areas each quarter. The following table provides a comparison of the labor supply classifications for the 150 areas during all four quarters of 1981 and the final quarter of 1980. The total U.S. unemployment rate is also provided for each of the quarters.

Labor Supply Category	Fourth Quarter 1981	Third Quarter 1981	Second Quarter 1981	First Quarter 1981	Fourth Quarter 1980

Reflecting the increase in the national unemployment rate between the third and fourth quarters of 1981, the number of areas classified as having a critical surplus of labor (Group F) increased from 5 to 15. This resulted in the largest number of areas in Group F since the period late in 1975 and the early months of 1976.

In comparing the fourth quarter 1981 classifications with those for the same quarter of 1980, the areas classified as having a surplus of labor increased from 99 to 115, while the number of areas classified as having a shortage of labor dropped from 51 to 31.

The fourth quarter 1981 labor supply classifications and labor force data for the various areas are provided in the table following this section. The labor force data are developed by the State employment security agencies in cooperation with the Bureau of Labor Statistics (BLS). Explanatory notes in the monthly BLS, periodical Employment and Earnings, are provided under the heading "State and Area Unemployment Data" and describe the methods prescribed by BLS in developing the estimates of labor force, employment, and unemployment.

Labor Market Areas

Unlike the classification of labor surplus areas for Federal contract preference which are done on the basis of civil jurisdictions, the labor supply classifications are done on a labor market area or metropolitan area basis.

A labor market area means a geographic area in which there is a concentration of economic activity or labor demand and in which workers can readily change jobs without changing their place of residence. The largest labor market areas usually contain at least one central city with a population of 50,000 or more. In most instances, the boundaries of the large labor market areas coincide with the boundaries of the Standard Metropolitan Statistical Areas.

While the largest market areas are defined in terms of a central city plus the surrounding counties which comprise the metropolitan area, smaller labor market areas are usually defined as one or more counties. In New England, the areas are defined on the basis of groupings of towns which are considered to be the major geographical units.

The geographical boundaries of all labor market areas are contained in the Employment and Training Administration publication entitled Directory of Important Labor Areas. Requests for copies of the Directory should be addressed to the Employment and Training Administration, Attention: TPPL (Room 8318), 601 D Street, N.W., Washington, D.C. 20213.

Area Trends in Employment and Unemployment provides information on labor surplus areas as classified by the U.S. Department of Labor.

The purpose in classifying labor surplus areas is to put the Federal Government's procurement contracts into areas of high unemployment. Employers located in these labor surplus areas are eligible for preference in bidding on Federal contracts.

Questions concerning the labor surplus area classifications may be directed to:

U.S. Department of Labor
Employment and Training Administration ((TEEPA)
601 D Street, N.W.
Washington, D.C. 20213
Telephone: (202) 376-6690

Employers located in labor surplus areas and interested in bidding on Federal contracts should consult the Commerce Business Daily which lists Federal contract requirements and indicates those to be awarded under preference procedures.

The Business Service Centers of the General Services Administration are located throughout the country and can provide additional information concerning Federal contracting opportunities. The locations of these Centers are provided at the end of this publication.

Eligible Labor Surplus Areas for Bidding On Federal Contracts

Background

Employers located in eligible labor surplus areas, as determined by the Department of Labor, and who meet other criteria, are entitled to preference in bidding on Federal procurement contracts.

The purpose of the labor surplus area procurement preference is to help guide a portion of the government's procurement dollars into those areas where people are in most severe economic need, e.g., areas with the highest unemployment.

The concept of targeting Federal procurement into areas of high unemployment dates back to the early 1950's. There was concorn among Government officials at the time that high unemployment rates and low utilization of plant and equipment in some areas would lead to erosion of the mobilization base and adversely affect production during the Korean Conflict. There was also concern that the cost of constructing new plants and relocating workers would cause an unnecessary drain on resources.

The Office of Defense Mobilization studied this problem and in February 1952 issued Defense Manpower Policy Number Four (DMP-4), implementing the idea of targeting Federal procurements to labor surplus areas. The program eventually became the responsibility of the Federal Preparedness Agency within the General Services Administration.

The labor surplus area program was largely unsuccessful in producing contract set-asides to employers in such areas because the program lacked a statutory base. This was changed in August 1977 with the enactment of Public Law 95-89 which amended the Small Business Act. Public Law 95-89 authorizes Federal agencies to "set-aside" contracts for competition among firms which agree to perform a substantial portion of the production of the contract in labor surplus areas. Contracts may be set-aside when an agency determines that offers will likely be obtained from a large enough number of eligible firms to permit the awards to be made at reasonable prices.

During the Urban and Regional Policy Group's review of Federal programs in 1977-78, the labor surplus area program was identified as one which had potential for providing relief for distressed areas. In March 1978, the General Services Administration was directed to work with each Federal agency to set targets for labor surplus area contracts, monitor agency performance, and report to the President every 6 months on the progress of each agency. These principles were contained in Executive Order 12073 which was signed on August 16, 1978.

In addition, Executive Order 12073 assigned to the Department of Labor the responsibility for classifying labor surplus areas. This was a continuation of the Labor Department's responsibilities since the inception of the program under DMP-4 in the early 1950's. The Department also has responsibility for classifying such areas under Executive Order 10582 which implements the Buy American Act.

Classification Criteria

Under the Department of Labor's classification procedures, an area is classified as a labor surplus area if the unemployment rate is at least 1.20 times the national unemployment rate during the previous two calendar years.

The procedures also provide for the classification on the basis of exceptional circumstances. Under these procedures, if an area does not meet the criteria necessary for classification as a labor surplus area, the criteria can be waived and the area classified when there has been a sudden rise in the unemployment in the area (other than seasonal or short term) that is not reflected in the area's data for the reference period. Such situations can occur as a result of natural disasters, plant closings of major employers, etc. which have a substantial impact on the area's employment and unemployment. In situations where such exceptional circumstances occur, the area can be classified as a labor surplus area upon petition from the appropriate State employment security agency.

Labor surplus areas are defined on the basis of civil jurisdictions, i.e., counties or county equivalents, as well as all cities with a population of at least 50,000. In 4 States (Michigan, New Jersey, New York and Pennsylvania), townships of 50,000 or more population are also eligible for classification as labor surplus areas. In New England, the labor surplus area classifications for Maine, New Hampshire, and Vermont are based on county data while in Connecticut, Massachusetts and Rhode Island, where counties have very limited or no government function, the classifications use towns as county equivalents. By classifying labor surplus areas in this way, i.e., in terms of civil jurisdictions rather than labor market areas, funds can be directed to specific localities with high unemployment rather than to all jurisdictions in a given metropolitan area, not all of which may suffer from the same degree of unemployment

The eligibility status of labor surplus areas is determined annually under the classification procedures. The annual listings are effective each June 1 and remain in effect for the following 12 months.

The reference period used in making the classifications is an average of the previous two calendar years. By using an average of 24 months of data, contracts can be targeted into areas experiencing high structural unemployment.

The reference period used in classifying the current list of labor surplus areas was January 1980 through December 1981. The national average unemployment rate during this reference period was 7.5 percent. Areas were included on the annual listing if their average unemployment rate during the reference period was 9.0 or more, i.e., 1.20 times the national rate. The initial list of 1,099 eligible labor surplus areas became effective June 1, 1982 and will remain in effect through May 31, 1983.

Newly Classified Labor Surplus Areas

Effective July 1, 1982, the U.S. Department of Labor added 121 areas to the annual list of labor surplus areas. The newly classified labor surplus areas are as follows:

Alabama: Huntsville City

Arkansas: Drew County

L 37.13:

Area Trends in Employment and Unemployment provides information on labor surplus areas as classified by the U.S. Department of Labor.

The purpose in classifying labor surplus areas is to put the Federal Government's procurement contracts into areas of high unemployment. Employers located in these labor surplus areas are eligible for preference in bidding on Federal contracts.

Questions concerning the labor surplus area classifications may be directed to:

U.S. Department of Labor
Employment and Training Administration (TEEPA)
601 D Street, N.W.
Washington, D.C. 20213
Telephone: (202) 376-6690

Employers located in labor surplus areas and interested in bidding on Federal contracts should consult the Commerce Business Daily which lists Federal contract requirements and indicates those to be awarded under preference procedures.

The Business Service Centers of the General Services Administration are located throughout the country and can provide additional information concerning Federal contracting opportunities. The locations of these Centers are provided at the end of this publication.

Eligible Labor Surplus Areas for Bidding On Federal Contracts

Background

Employers located in eligible labor surplus areas, as determined by the Department of Labor, and who meet other criteria, are entitled to preference in bidding on Federal procurement contracts.

The purpose of the labor surplus area procurement preference is to help guide a portion of the government's procurement dollars into those areas where people are in most severe economic need, e.g., areas with the highest unemployment.

The concept of targeting Federal procurement into areas of high unemployment dates back to the early 1950's. There was concern among Government officials at the time that high unemployment rates and low utilization of plant and equipment in some areas would lead to erosion of the mobilization base and adversely affect production during the Korean Conflict. There was also concern that the cost of constructing new plants and relocating workers would cause an unnecessary drain on resources.

The Office of Defense Mobilization studied this problem and in February 1952 issued Defense Manpower Policy Number Four (DMP-4), implementing the idea of targeting Federal procurements to labor surplus areas. The program eventually became the responsibility of the Federal Preparedness Agency within the General Services Administration.

The labor surplus area program was largely unsuccessful in producing contract set-asides to employers in such areas because the program lacked a statutory base. This was changed in August 1977 with the enactment of Public Law 95-89 which amended the Small Business Act. Public Law 95-89 authorizes Federal agencies to "set-aside" contracts for competition among firms which agree to perform a substantial portion of the production of the contract in labor surplus areas. Contracts may be set-aside when an agency determines that offers will likely be obtained from a large enough number of eligible firms to permit the awards to be made at reasonable prices.

During the Urban and Regional Policy Group's review of Federal programs in 1977-78, the labor surplus area program was identified as one which had potential for providing relief for distressed areas. In March 1978, the General Services Administration was directed to work with each Federal agency to set targets for labor surplus area contracts, monitor agency performance, and report to the President every 6 months on the progress of each agency. These principles were contained in Executive Order 12073 which was signed on August 16, 1978.

In addition, Executive Order 12073 assigned to the Department of Labor the responsibility for classifying labor surplus areas. This was a continuation of the Labor Department's responsibilities since the inception of the program under DMP-4 in the early 1950's. The Department also has responsibility for classifying such areas under Executive Order 10582 which implements the Buy American Act.

Classification Criteria

Under the Department of Labor's classification procedures, an area is classified as a labor surplus area if the unemployment rate is at least 1.20 times the national unemployment rate during the previous two calendar years.

The procedures also provide for the classification on the basis of exceptional circumstances. Under these procedures, if an area does not meet the criteria necessary for classification as a labor surplus area, the criteria can be waived and the area classified when there has been a sudden rise in the unemployment in the area (other than seasonal or short term) that is not reflected in the area's data for the reference period. Such situations can occur as a result of natural disasters, plant closings of major employers, etc. which have a substantial impact on the area's employment and unemployment. In situations where such exceptional circumstances occur, the area can be classified as a labor surplus area upon petition from the appropriate State employment security agency. The addresses of the State employment security agencies are provided on the inside back cover.

Labor surplus areas are classified on the basis of civil jurisdictions, i.e., counties or county equivalents, as well as all cities with a population of at least 50,000. In 4 States (Michigan, New Jersey, New York and Pennsylvania), townships of 50,000 or more population are also eligible for classification as labor surplus areas. In New England, the labor surplus areas classifications for Maine, New Hampshire, and Vermont are based on county data while in Connecticut, Massachusetts and Rhode Island, where counties have very limited or no government function, the classifications use towns as county equivalents. By classifying labor surplus areas in this way i.e., in terms of civil jurisdictions rather than labor market areas, funds can be directed to specific localities with high unemployment rather than to all jurisdictions in a given metropolitan area, not all of which may suffer from the same degree of unemployment.

The eligibility status of labor surplus areas is determined annually under the classification procedures. The annual listings are effective each June 1 and remain in effect for the following 12 months.

The reference period used in classifying the current list of labor surplus areas was January 1980 through December 1981. The national average unemployment rate during this reference period was 7.5 percent. Areas were included on the annual listing if their average unemployment rate during the reference period was 9.0 or more, i.e., 1.20 times the national rate. The initial list of 1,099 eligible labor surplus areas became effective June 1, 1982, and will remain in effect through May 31, 1983.

Newly Classified Labor Surplus Areas

Effective August 6, 1982, the U.S. Department of Labor added 55 areas to the annual list of labor surplus areas. The newly classified labor surplus areas are as follows:

Alabama: Chambers, Cherokee, Clay, Cleburne, and Tallapoosa Counties

Arizona: Gila, Greenlee, Mohave, and Pinal Counties

Delaware: Kent County

Georgia: Upson County

Idaho: Shoshone County

Illinois: Balance of Cook County (Cook County less Cities of Arlington Heights, Chicago, Cicero, Des Plaines, Elgin-Cook, Evanston, Mount Prospect Village, Oak Lawn, Oak Park, Skokie) and Tazewell County

Indiana: Balance of Allen County (Allen County less Ft. Wayne City) and Balance of St. Joseph County (St. Joseph County less South Bend City)

Maine: Oxford County

Mississippi: Walthall County

New Jersey: Atlantic and Sussex Counties, Bayonne and Trenton Cities

New York: Cortland County, New York City, Towns of Cheektowaga, Hamburg, Tonawanda, West Seneca, and Balance of Erie County (Erie County less Buffalo City, and Towns of Amherst, Cheektowaga, Hamburg, Tonawanda, and West Seneca Township)

North Carolina: Martin and Rutherford Counties

Ohio: Medina County

Pennsylvania: Adams and York Counties

Rhode Island: Providence City

South Carolina: Aiken Anderson, Bamberg, Cherokee, Chesterfield, Edgefield, Fairfield, Florence, Horry, Jasper, Kershaw, Lancaster, Laurens, Newberry, Pickens, Spartanburg, and York Counties

Washington: Seattle City, Balance of Spokane County (Spokane County less Spokane City) and Balance of King County (King County less Bellevue City and Seattle City)

As a result of the classification of these 55 areas, there are now 1,275 labor surplus areas. Following is a complete listing of all 1,275 labor surplus areas and the civil jurisdictions included, as of August 6, 1982.

Area Trends in Employment and Unemployment provides information on labor surplus areas as classified by the U.S. Department of Labor.

The purpose in classifying labor surplus areas is to put the Federal Government's procurement contracts into areas of high unemployment. Employers located in these labor surplus areas are eligible for preference in bidding on Federal contracts.

Questions concerning the labor surplus area classifications may be directed to:

U.S. Department of Labor
Employment and Training Administration ((TEEPA)
601 D Street, N.W.
Washington, D.C. 20213
Telephone: (202) 376-6690

Employers located in labor surplus areas and interested in bidding on Federal contracts should consult the Commerce Business Daily which lists Federal contract requirements and indicates those to be awarded under preference procedures.

The Business Service Centers of the General Services Administration are located throughout the country and can provide additional information concerning Federal contracting opportunities. The locations of these Centers are provided at the end of this publication.

Eligible Labor Surplus Areas for Bidding On Federal Contracts

Background

Employers located in eligible labor surplus areas, as determined by the Department of Labor, and who meet other criteria, are entitled to preference in bidding on Federal procurement contracts.

The purpose of the labor surplus area procurement preference is to help guide a portion of the government's procurement dollars into those areas where people are in most severe economic need, e.g., areas with the highest unemployment.

The concept of targeting Federal procurement into areas of high unemployment dates back to the early 1950's. There was concern among Government officials at the time that high unemployment rates and low utilization of plant and equipment in some areas would lead to erosion of the mobilization base and adversely affect production during the Korean Conflict. There was also concern that the cost of constructing new plants and relocating workers would cause an unnecessary drain on resources.

The Office of Defense Mobilization studied this problem and in February 1952 issued Defense Manpower Policy Number Four (DMP-4), implementing the idea of targeting Federal procurements to labor surplus areas. The program eventually became the responsibility of the Federal Preparedness Agency within the General Services Administration.

The labor surplus area program was largely unsuccessful in producing contract set-asides to employers in such areas because the program lacked a statutory base. This was changed in August 1977 with the enactment of Public Law 95-89 which amended the Small Business Act. Public Law 95-89 authorizes Federal agencies to "set-aside" contracts for competition among firms which agree to perform a substantial portion of the production of the contract in labor surplus areas. Contracts may be set-aside when an agency determines that offers will likely be obtained from a large enough number of eligible firms to permit the awards to be made at reasonable prices.

During the Urban and Regional Policy Group's review of Federal programs in 1977-78, the labor surplus area program was identified as one which had potential for providing relief for distressed areas. In March 1978, the General Services Administration was directed to work with each Federal agency to set targets for labor surplus area contracts, monitor agency performance, and report to the President every 6 months on the progress of each agency. These principles were contained in Executive Order 12073 which was signed on August 16, 1978.

In addition, Executive Order 12073 assigned to the Department of Labor the responsibility for classifying labor surplus areas. This was a continuation of the Labor Department's responsibilities since the inception of the program under DMP-4 in the early 1950's. The Department also has responsibility for classifying such areas under Executive Order 10582 which implements the Buy American Act.

Classification Criteria

Under the Department of Labor's classification procedures, an area is classified as a labor surplus area if the unemployment rate is at least 1.20 times the national unemployment rate during the previous two calendar years.

The procedures also provide for the classification on the basis of exceptional circumstances. Under these procedures, if an area does not meet the criteria necessary for classification as a labor surplus area, the criteria can be waived and the area classified when there has been a sudden rise in the unemployment in the area (other than seasonal or short term) that is not reflected in the area's data for the reference period. Such situations can occur as a result of natural disasters, plant closings of major employers, etc. which have a substantial impact on the area's employment and unemployment. In situations where such exceptional circumstances occur, the area can be classified as a labor surplus area upon petition from the appropriate State employment security agency.

Labor surplus areas are defined on the basis of civil jurisdictions, i.e., counties or county equivalents, as well as all cities with a population of at least 50,000. In 4 States (Michigan, New Jersey, New York and Pennsylvania), townships of 50,000 or more population are also eligible for classification as labor surplus areas. In New England, the labor surplus area classifications for Maine, New Hampshire, and Vermont are based on county data while in Connecticut, Massachusetts and Rhode Island, where counties have very limited or no government function, the classifications use towns as county equivalents. By classifying labor surplus areas in this way, i.e., in terms of civil jurisdictions rather than labor market areas, funds can be directed to specific localities with high unemployment rather than to all jurisdictions in a given metropolitan area, not all of which may suffer from the same degree of unemployment.

The eligibility status of labor surplus areas is determined annually under the classification procedures. The annual listings are effective each June 1 and remain in effect for the following 12 months.

The reference period used in making the classifications is an average of the previous two calendar years. By using an average of 24 months of data, contracts can be targeted into areas experiencing high structural unemployment.

The reference period used in classifying the current list of labor surplus areas was January 1980 through December 1981. The national average unemployment rate during this reference period was 7.5 percent. Areas were included on the annual listing if their average unemployment rate during the reference period was 9.0 or more, i.e., 1.20 times the national rate. The initial list of 1,099 eligible labor surplus areas became effective June 1, 1982 and will remain in effect through May 31, 1983.

Newly Classified Labor Surplus Areas

No additional areas have been classified as labor surplus areas by the U.S. Department of Labor since the most recent additions were made to the annual listing on August 6, 1982. The number of labor surplus areas remains unchanged at 1,275. Following is a listing of all 1,275 presently classified labor surplus areas.

Labor Supply Analysis, First Quarter 1982

Labor Supply Categories

Each quarter, the Department of Labor classifies over 300 of the Standard Metropolitan Statistical Areas (SMSAs) into one of the six labor supply categories shown below.

Labor Supply Category	Description	Unemployment Rate [1]
Group A	Critical shortage of labor	Less than 1.5%
Group B	Serious shortage of labor	1.5 to 2.9%
Group C	Moderate shortage of labor	3.0 to 5.9%
Group D	Moderate surplus of labor	6.0 to 8.9%
Group E	Serious surplus of labor	9.0 to 11.9%
Group F	Critical surplus of labor	12.0% or more

[1] Ratio of unemployment to area's total labor force.

Background

The categories used inclassifying major labor areas according to the adequacy of the supply of labor represent a continuation of a system which has been in operation for over 25 years. Although modifications have been made in the system from time to time, the present labor supply categories as indicated above are basically unchanged since May 1955.

The labor supply classifications are provided for use in analyzing the relative levels of unemployment among the largest employment centers of the country. The labor supply classifications should not be confused with the listing of labor surplus areas provided in the previous section. The labor supply classifications are prepared for analytical purposes only and are not to be used in determining preference for Federal contracts.

The labor supply classifications provided in this issue cover the first quarter of 1982 and are based upon each area's average labor force data for the months of January, February and March 1982.

Following is a table of the labor supply classifications for the SMSAs, covering the fourth quarter of 1981 and the first quarter of 1982. The total U.S. unemployment rate for each of the quarters is also provided.

Labor Supply Category	First Quarter 1982	Fourth Quarter 1981
Total, All Groups	317	317
Group A	0	0
Group B	0	1
Group C	34	72
Group D	111	129
Group E	78	67
Group F	94	40
Data Not Available	0	8
U.S. Unemployment Rate[1]	8.8	8.3

[1] Source: Bureau of Labor Statistics

The increase in the total U.S. unemployment rate between the two quarters was reflected by a major increase in the numbers of areas experiencing a critical surplus of labor. The number of these Group F areas rose to 94 in the first quarter of 1982, more than twice the number of such areas in the final quarter of 1981. The number of areas classified in Group F in the third quarter of 1981 was 11.

To assist in analyzing trends over time in the relative unemployment levels of the nation's major employment centers, the labor supply classifications are provided for the same 150 areas each quarter. The following table provides a comparison of the labor supply classifications for the 150 areas during all four quarters of 1981 and the first quarter of 1982. The total U.S. unemployment rate is also provided for each of the quarters.

Labor Supply Category	First Quarter 1982	Fourth Quarter 1981	Third Quarter 1981	Second Quarter 1981	First Quarter 1981

Data Not Available	0	4	0	0	0
U.S. Unemployment Rate[1]	8.8	8.3	7.4	7.4	7.4

[1] Source: Bureau of Labor Statistics

As was the case with the SMSA labor supply classifications, the total number of the 150 areas experiencing a surplus of labor has increased significantly. The areas with a critical surplus almost tripled between the final quarter of 1981 and the first quarter of 1982, while the number of areas with a labor shortage dropped from 31 to 12.

A total of 138 of the 150 areas were classified as having a surplus of labor (Groups D,E, and F) during the first quarter of 1982. This is the largest number of such areas on record since the classifications were initiated in 1955. The only period when there was a comparable number of such areas occurred during the second half of 1975 and the first half of 1976 when the number of such areas varied between 130 and 135. The U.S. unemployment rate during 1975 was at high levels and averaged 8.5 percent for the year.

Labor Market Areas

Unlike the classification of labor surplus areas for Federal contract preference which are done on the basis of civil jurisdictions, the labor supply classifications are done on a labor market area or metropolitan area basis.

A labor market area means a geographic area in which there is a concentration of economic activity or labor demand and in which workers can readily change jobs without changing their place of residence. The largest labor market areas usually contain at least one central city with a population of 50,000 or more. In most instances, the boundaries of the large labor market areas coincide with the boundaries of the Standard Metropolitan Statistical Areas.

While the largest market areas are defined in terms of a central city plus the surrounding counties which comprise the metropolitan area, smaller labor market areas are usually defined as one or more counties. In New England, the areas are defined on the basis of groupings of towns which are considered to be the major geographical units.

The geographical boundaries of all labor market areas are contained in the Employment and Training Administration publication entitled Directory of Important Labor Areas. Requests for copies of the Directory should be addressed to the Employment and Training Administration, Attention: TEEPA (Room 8028), 601 D Street, N.W., Washington, D.C. 20213.

Area Trends in Employment and Unemployment provides information on labor surplus areas as classified by the U.S. Department of Labor.

The purpose in classifying labor surplus areas is to put the Federal Government's procurement contracts into areas of high unemployment. Employers located in these labor surplus areas are eligible for preference in bidding on Federal contracts.

Questions concerning the labor surplus area classifications may be directed to:

U.S. Department of Labor
Employment and Training Administration (TEEPA)

Eligible Labor Surplus Areas for Bidding On Federal Contracts

Background

Employers located in eligible labor surplus areas, as determined by the Department of Labor, and who meet other criteria, are entitled to preference in bidding on Federal procurement contracts.

The purpose of the labor surplus area procurement preference is to help guide a portion of the government's procurement dollars into those areas where people are in most severe economic need, e.g., areas with the highest unemployment.

The concept of targeting Federal procurement into areas of high unemployment dates back to the early 1950's. There was concern among Government officials at the time that high unemployment rates and low utilization of plant and equipment in some areas would lead to erosion of the mobilization base and adversely affect production during the Korean Conflict. There was also concern that the cost of constructing new plants and relocating workers would cause an unnecessary drain on resources.

The Office of Defense Mobilization studied this problem and in February 1952 issued Defense Manpower Policy Number Four (DMP-4), implementing the idea of targeting Federal procurements to labor surplus areas. The program eventually became the responsibility of the Federal Preparedness Agency within the General Services Administration.

The labor surplus area program was largely unsuccessful in producing contract set-asides to employers in such areas because the program lacked a statutory base. This was changed in August 1977 with the enactment of Public Law 95-89 which amended the Small Business Act. Public Law 95-89 authorizes Federal agencies to "set-aside" contracts for competition among firms which agree to perform a substantial portion of the production of the contract in labor surplus areas. Contracts may be set-aside when an agency determines that offers will likely be obtained from a large enough number of eligible firms to permit the awards to be made at reasonable prices.

During the Urban and Regional Policy Group's review of Federal programs in 1977-78, the labor surplus area program was identified as one which had potential for providing relief for distressed areas. In March 1978, the General Services Administration was directed to work with each Federal agency to set targets for labor surplus area contracts, monitor agency performance, and report to the President every 6 months on the progress of each agency. These principles were contained in Executive Order 12073 which was signed on August 16, 1978.

In addition, Executive Order 12073 assigned to the Department of Labor the responsibility for classifying labor surplus areas. This was a continuation of the Labor Department's responsibilities since the inception of the program under DMP-4 in the early 1950's. The Department also has responsibility for classifying such areas under Executive Order 10582 which implements the Buy American Act.

Classification Criteria

Under the Department of Labor's classification procedures, an area is classified as a labor surplus area if the unemployment rate is at least 1.20 times the national unemployment rate during the previous two calendar years.

The procedures also provide for the classification on the basis of exceptional circumstances. Under these procedures, if an area does not meet the criteria necessary for classification as a labor surplus area, the criteria can be waived and the area classified when there has been a sudden rise in the unemployment in the area (other than seasonal or short term) that is not reflected in the area's data for the reference period. Such situations can occur as a result of natural disasters, plant closings of major employers, etc. which have a substantial impact on the area's employment and unemployment. In situations where such exceptional circumstances occur, the area can be classified as a labor surplus area upon petition from the appropriate State employment security agency. The addresses of the State employment security agencies are provided on the inside back cover.

Labor surplus areas are classified on the basis of civil jurisdictions, i.e., counties or county equivalents, as well as all cities with a population of at least 50,000. In 4 States (Michigan, New Jersey, New York and Pennsylvania), townships of 50,000 or more population are also eligible for classification as labor surplus areas. In New England, the labor surplus areas classifications for Maine, New Hampshire, and Vermont are based on county data while in Connecticut, Massachusetts and Rhode Island, where counties have very limited or no government function, the classifications use towns as county equivalents. By classifying labor surplus areas in this way i.e., in terms of civil jurisdictions rather than labor market areas, funds can be directed to specific localities with high unemployment rather than to all jurisdictions in a given metropolitan area, not all of which may suffer from the same degree of unemployment.

The eligibility status of labor surplus areas is determined annually under the classification procedures. The annual listings are effective each June 1 and remain in effect for the following 12 months.

The reference period used in classifying the current list of labor surplus areas was January 1980 through December 1981. The national average unemployment rate during this reference period was 7.5 percent. Areas were included on the annual listing if their average unemployment rate during the reference period was 9.0 or more, i.e., 1.20 times the national rate. The initial list of 1,099 eligible labor surplus areas became effective June 1, 1982, and will remain in effect through May 31, 1983.

Newly Classified Labor Surplus Areas

Effective October 1, 1982, the U.S. Department of Labor added 5 areas to the annual list of labor surplus areas. The newly classified labor surplus areas are as follows:

Alabama:	Shelby County
Maryland:	Cecil County
New York:	Schuyler County
North Carolina:	Johnston County
Wisconsin:	Milwaukee City

As a result of the classificaton of these 5 areas, there are now 1,280 labor surplus areas. Following is a complete listing of all 1,280 labor surplus areas and the civil jurisdictions included, as of October 1, 1982.

L 37.13:

Area Trends in Employment and Unemployment provides information on labor surplus areas as classified by the U.S. Department of Labor.

The purpose in classifying labor surplus areas is to put the Federal Government's procurement contracts into areas of high unemployment. Employers located in these labor surplus areas are eligible for preference in bidding on Federal contracts.

Questions concerning the labor surplus area classifications may be directed to:

U.S. Department of Labor
Employment and Training Administration ((TEEPA)
601 D Street, N.W.
Washington, D.C. 20213
Telephone: (202) 376-6690

Employers located in labor surplus areas and interested in bidding on Federal contracts should consult the Commerce Business Daily which lists Federal contract requirements and indicates those to be awarded under preference procedures.

The Business Service Centers of the General Services Administration are located throughout the country and can provide additional information concerning Federal contracting opportunities. The locations of these Centers are provided at the end of this publication.

Eligible Labor Surplus Areas for Bidding On Federal Contracts

Background

Employers located in eligible labor surplus areas, as determined by the Department of Labor, and who meet other criteria, are entitled to preference in bidding on Federal procurement contracts.

The purpose of the labor surplus area procurement preference is to help guide a portion of the government's procurement dollars into those areas where people are in most severe economic need, e.g., areas with the highest unemployment.

The concept of targeting Federal procurement into areas of high unemployment dates back to the early 1950's. There was concern among Government officials at the time that high unemployment rates and low utilization of plant and equipment in some areas would lead to erosion of the mobilization base and adversely affect production during the Korean Conflict. There was also concern that the cost of constructing new plants and relocating workers would cause an unnecessary drain on resources.

The Office of Defense Mobilization studied this problem and in February 1952 issued Defense Manpower Policy Number Four (DMP-4), implementing the idea of targeting Federal procurements to labor surplus areas. The program eventually became the responsibility of the Federal Preparedness Agency within the General Services Administration.

The labor surplus area program was largely unsuccessful in producing contract set-asides to employers in such areas because the program lacked a statutory base. This was changed in August 1977 with the enactment of Public Law 95-89 which amended the Small Business Act. Public Law 95-89 authorizes Federal agencies to "set-aside" contracts for competition among firms which agree to perform a substantial portion of the production of the contract in labor surplus areas. Contracts may be set-aside when an agency determines that offers will likely be obtained from a large enough number of eligible firms to permit the awards to be made at reasonable prices.

During the Urban and Regional Policy Group's review of Federal programs in 1977-78, the labor surplus area program was identified as one which had potential for providing relief for distressed areas. In March 1978, the General Services Administration was directed to work with each Federal agency to set targets for labor surplus area contracts, monitor agency performance, and report to the President every 6 months on the progress of each agency. These principles were contained in Executive Order 12073 which was signed on August 16, 1978.

In addition, Executive Order 12073 assigned to the Department of Labor the responsibility for classifying labor surplus areas. This was a continuation of the Labor Department's responsibilities since the inception of the program under DMP-4 in the early 1950's. The Department also has responsibility for classifying such areas under Executive Order 10582 which implements the Buy American Act.

Classification Criteria

Under the Department of Labor's classification procedures, an area is classified as a labor surplus area if the unemployment rate is at least 1.20 times the national unemployment rate during the previous two calendar years.

The procedures also provide for the classification on the basis of exceptional circumstances. Under these procedures, if an area does not meet the criteria necessary for classification as a labor surplus area, the criteria can be waived and the area classified when there has been a sudden rise in the unemployment in the area (other than seasonal or short term) that is not reflected in the area's data for the reference period. Such situations can occur as a result of natural disasters, plant closings of major employers, etc. which have a substantial impact on the area's employment and unemployment. In situations where such exceptional circumstances occur, the area can be classified as a labor surplus area upon petition from the appropriate State employment security agency.

Labor surplus areas are defined on the basis of civil jurisdictions, i.e., counties or county equivalents, as well as all cities with a population of at least 50,000. In 4 States (Michigan, New Jersey, New York and Pennsylvania), townships of 50,000 or more population are also eligible for classification as labor surplus areas. In New England, the labor surplus area classifications for Maine, New Hampshire, and Vermont are based on county data while in Connecticut, Massachusetts and Rhode Island, where counties have very limited or no government function, the classifications use towns as county equivalents. By classifying labor surplus areas in this way, i.e., in terms of civil jurisdictions rather than labor market areas, funds can be directed to specific localities with high unemployment rather than to all jurisdictions in a given metropolitan area, not all of which may suffer from the same degree of unemployment.

The eligibility status of labor surplus areas is determined annually under the classification procedures. The annual listings are effective each June 1 and remain in effect for the following 12 months.

The reference period used in making the classifications is an average of the previous two calendar years. By using an average of 24 months of data, contracts can be targeted into areas experiencing high structural unemployment.

The reference period used in classifying the current list of labor surplus areas was January 1980 through December 1981. The national average unemployment rate during this reference period was 7.5 percent. Areas were included on the annual listing if their average unemployment rate during the reference period was 9.0 or more, i.e., 1.20 times the national rate. The initial list of 1,099 eligible labor surplus areas became effective June 1, 1982 and will remain in effect through May 31, 1983.

Newly Classified Labor Surplus Areas

Effective November 1, 1982, the U.S. Department of Labor added 14 areas to the annual list of labor surplus areas. The newly classified labor surplus areas are as follows:

Alabama: Elmore County, Geneva County

Connecticut: Meriden City

Maine: Androscoggin County

Maryland: Frederick County

North Carolina: Caldwell County

Ohio: Lake County, Miami County

Pennsylvania: Pittsburgh City, Balance of Allegheny County, Bethlehem City, Balance of Northampton County, Lebanon County

Rhode Island: Central Falls City

In addition, 1 area was removed from the annual labor surplus area listing, effective November 1, 1982, because the area no longer met the classification criteria. The area removed from the listing is:

Tennessee: Weakley County

As a result of the addition of 14 areas and the removal of 1 area from the annual listing, there are now 1,293 labor surplus areas. Following is a complete listing of all 1,293 labor surplus areas and the civil jurisdictions included, as of November 1, 1982.

Area Trends in Employment and Unemployment provides information on labor surplus areas as classified by the U.S. Department of Labor.

The purpose in classifying labor surplus areas is to put the Federal Government's procurement contracts into areas of high unemployment. Employers located in these labor surplus areas are eligible for preference in bidding on Federal contracts.

Questions concerning the labor surplus area classifications may be directed to:

U.S. Department of Labor
Employment and Training Administration (TEEPA)

Eligible Labor Surplus Areas for Bidding On Federal Contracts

Background

Employers located in eligible labor surplus areas, as determined by the Department of Labor, and who meet other criteria, are entitled to preference in bidding on Federal procurement contracts.

The purpose of the labor surplus area procurement preference is to help guide a portion of the government's procurement dollars into those areas where people are in most severe economic need, e.g., areas with the highest unemployment.

The concept of targeting Federal procurement into areas of high unemployment dates back to the early 1950's. There was concern among Government officials at the time that high unemployment rates and low utilization of plant and equipment in some areas would lead to erosion of the mobilization base and adversely affect production during the Korean Conflict. There was also concern that the cost of constructing new plants and relocating workers would cause an unnecessary drain on resources.

The Office of Defense Mobilization studied this problem and in February 1952 issued Defense Manpower Policy Number Four (DMP-4), implementing the idea of targeting Federal procurements to labor surplus areas. The program eventually became the responsibility of the Federal Preparedness Agency within the General Services Administration.

The labor surplus area program was largely unsuccessful in producing contract set-asides to employers in such areas because the program lacked a statutory base. This was changed in August 1977 with the enactment of Public Law 95-89 which amended the Small Business Act. Public Law 95-89 authorizes Federal agencies to "set-aside" contracts for competition among firms which agree to perform a substantial portion of the production of the contract in labor surplus areas. Contracts may be set-aside when an agency determines that offers will likely be obtained from a large enough number of eligible firms to permit the awards to be made at reasonable prices.

During the Urban and Regional Policy Group's review of Federal programs in 1977-78, the labor surplus area program was identified as one which had potential for providing relief for distressed areas. In March 1978, the General Services Administration was directed to work with each Federal agency to set targets for labor surplus area contracts, monitor agency performance, and report to the President every 6 months on the progress of each agency. These principles were contained in Executive Order 12073 which was signed on August 16, 1978.

In addition, Executive Order 12073 assigned to the Department of Labor the responsibility for classifying labor surplus areas. This was a continuation of the Labor Department's responsibilities since the inception of the program under DMP-4 in the early 1950's. The Department also has responsibility for classifying such areas under Executive Order 10582 which implements the Buy American Act.

Classification Criteria

Under the Department of Labor's classification procedures, an area is classified as a labor surplus area if the unemployment rate is at least 1.20 times the national unemployment rate during the previous two calendar years.

The procedures also provide for the classification on the basis of exceptional circumstances. Under these procedures, if an area does not meet the criteria necessary for classification as a labor surplus area, the criteria can be waived and the area classified when there has been a sudden rise in the unemployment in the area (other than seasonal or short term) that is not reflected in the area's data for the reference period. Such situations can occur as a result of natural disasters, plant closings of major employers, etc. which have a substantial impact on the area's employment and unemployment. In situations where such exceptional circumstances occur, the area can be classified as a labor surplus area upon petition from the appropriate State employment security agency. The addresses of the State employment security agencies are provided on the inside back cover.

Labor surplus areas are classified on the basis of civil jurisdictions, i.e., counties or county equivalents, as well as all cities with a population of at least 50,000. In 4 States (Michigan, New Jersey, New York and Pennsylvania), townships of 50,000 or more population are also eligible for classification as labor surplus areas. In New England, the labor surplus areas classifications for Maine, New Hampshire, and Vermont are based on county data while in Connecticut, Massachusetts and Rhode Island, where counties have very limited or no government function, the classifications use towns as county equivalents. By classifying labor surplus areas in this way i.e., in terms of civil jurisdictions rather than labor market areas, funds can be directed to specific localities with high unemployment rather than to all jurisdictions in a given metropolitan area, not all of which may suffer from the same degree of unemployment.

The eligibility status of labor surplus areas is determined annually under the classification procedures. The annual listings are effective each June 1 and remain in effect for the following 12 months.

The reference period used in classifying the current list of labor surplus areas was January 1980 through December 1981. The national average unemployment rate during this reference period was 7.5 percent. Areas were included on the annual listing if their average unemployment rate during the reference period was 9.0 or more, i.e., 1.20 times the national rate. The initial list of 1,099 eligible labor surplus areas became effective June 1, 1982, and will remain in effect through May 31, 1983.

Newly Classified Labor Surplus Areas

Effective December 1, 1982, the U.S. Department of Labor added 11 areas to the annual list of labor surplus areas. The newly classified labor surplus areas are as follows:

Iowa—Sioux City
Kansas—Montgomery County
Massachusetts—Pittsfield City
Michigan—Ottawa County
New York—Chautauqua County
North Carolina—Davie County, Mitchell County
Oregon—Balance of Multnomah County (County less Portland City)
South Carolina—Greenville City, Balance of Greenville County (County less Greenville City)
Washington—Clark County

As a result of these classifications, there are now 1,304 labor surplus areas. Following is a complete listing of all 1,304 labor surplus areas and the civil jurisdictions included, as of December 1, 1982.

Labor Supply Analysis, Second Quarter 1982

Labor Supply Categories

Each quarter, the Department of Labor classifies over 300 of the Standard Metropolitan Statistical Areas (SMSAs) into one of the six labor supply categories shown below.

Labor Supply Category	Description	Unemployment Rate [1]
Group A	Critical shortage of labor	Less than 1.5%
Group B	Serious shortage of labor	1.5 to 2.9%
Group C	Moderate shortage of labor	3.0 to 5.9%
Group D	Moderate surplus of labor	6.0 to 8.9%
Group E	Serious surplus of labor	9.0 to 11.9%
Group F	Critical surplus of labor	12.0% or more

[1] Ratio of unemployment to area's total labor force.

Background

The categories used in classifying major labor areas according to the adequacy of the supply of labor represent a continuation of a system which has been in operation for over 25 years. Although modifications have been made in the system from time to time, the present labor supply categories as indicated above are basically unchanged since May 1955.

The labor supply classifications are provided for use in analyzing the relative levels of unemployment among the largest employment centers of the country. The labor supply classifications should not be confused with the listing of labor surplus areas provided in the previous section. The labor supply classifications are prepared for analytical purposes only and are not to be used in determining preference for Federal contracts.

The labor supply classifications provided in this issue cover the second quarter of 1982 and are based upon each area's average labor force data for the months of April, May, and June 1982.

Following is a table of the labor supply classifications for the SMSAs, covering the first and second quarters of 1982. The total U.S. unemployment rate for each of the quarters is also provided.

Labor Supply Category	Second Quarter 1982	First Quarter 1982
Total, All Groups	317	317
Group A	0	0
Group B	0	0
Group C	32	34
Group D	122	111
Group E	88	78
Group F	75	94
U.S. Unemployment Rate[1]	9.5	8.8

[1] Source: Bureau of Labor Statistics

The increase in the total U.S. unemployment rate between the first and second quarters of 1982 was accompanied by an increase from 283 to 285 in the number of SMSAs classified as having a surplus of labor. Of the total number of SMSAs for which labor supply classifications are made (317), almost 90 percent were classified as having a surplus of labor (Groups D, E, and F) during the second quarter of 1982.

To assist in analyzing trends over time in the relative unemployment levels of the nation's major employment centers, the labor supply classifications are provided for the same 150 areas each quarter. The following table provides a comparison of the labor supply classifications for the 150 areas during the final three quarters of 1981 and the first two quarters of 1982. The total U.S. unemployment rate is also provided for each of the quarters.

Labor Supply Category	Second Quarter 1982	First Quarter 1982	Fourth Quarter 1981	Third Quarter 1981	Second Quarter 1981

Data Not Available	0	0	4	0	0
U.S. Unemployment Rate[1]	9.5	8.8	8.3	7.4	7.4

[1] Source: Bureau of Labor Statistics

The number of areas having a surplus of labor (Groups D, E, and F) continued at record high levels, increasing from 138 to 140 between the first and second quarters. The only prior period when there was a comparable number of such areas classified occurred during the second half of 1975 and the first half of 1976 when the number varied between 130 and 135 areas. The U.S. unemployment rate during 1975 averaged 8.5 percent.

Labor Market Areas

Unlike the classification of labor surplus areas for Federal contract preference which are done on the basis of civil jurisdictions, the labor supply classifications are done on a labor market area or metropolitan area basis.

A labor market area means a geographic area in which there is a concentration of economic activity or labor demand and in which workers can readily change jobs without changing their place of residence. The largest labor market areas usually contain at least one central city with a population of 50,000 or more. In most instances, the boundaries of the large labor market areas coincide with the boundaries of the Standard Metropolitan Statistical Areas.

While the largest market areas are defined in terms of a central city plus the surrounding counties which comprise the metropolitan area, smaller labor market areas are usually defined as one or more counties. In New England, the areas are defined on the basis of groupings of towns which are considered to be the major geographical units.

The geographical boundaries of all labor market areas are contained in the Employment and Training Administration publication entitled Directory of Important Labor Areas. Requests for copies of the Directory should be addressed to the Employment and Training Administration, Attention: TEEPA (Room 8028), 601 D Street, N.W., Washington, D.C. 20213.
